BETWEEN THE LINES

When I was in Bible College, I went downtown one afternoon and saw one of my fellow classmates standing on the street corner preaching. He was a passionate man out declaring the gospel, but he was also earning school credits for his efforts.

I snuck quietly to a safe distance and listened as he shouted out the message of the cross. I was only there for a few minutes when a woman came walking down the street with an inquisitive young boy in tow. As she hurried by, giving the preacher a wide berth, the little boy asked his mother, "Why is that man standing there yelling at people?" She gave his arm a firm tug to keep him moving as he strained to look at the student, and she replied, "Don't pay any attention to him, he's just a crazy man!"

You know as I looked around, I realized I was the only one listening to him! That sealed it for me. Street preaching was definitely an outmoded means of communicating our timeless message and an especially poor way to earn school credits.

How much more effective it is to simply have the people of God everyday, at work, or school, or play, listening as people share their stories and then when the questions arise, share the answer: Jesus.

After all, it is good news.

Today we are going to learn about the eighth commandment: "Thou shall not steal," and that it is based upon the principle of respect for others. The secret of harmony with other people is that we do unto them as we would have them do unto us. God has decreed that we live by this law of love and mutual respect. Therefore, if you love your brother, you won't steal from him. You will respect his possessions and treat him with dignity.
